Text A. Francesca.

I was born in a small village in the mountains in the north of Italy. It was very cold in winter – colder than in London. But the summers were nice.

I am from a large family – I had three sisters and four brothers. We had two dogs, a cat and a goat.

We lived in a big house. It had blue windows and red doors. When you stood at the window you looked down on the garden. I think it was nicer than the other gardens in the village.

My father was a baker and my mother worked in the shop. They got up at three o'clock every day to make cake and bread and send me to school later at seven. In the holidays I helped them in the shop.

I went back to my village last year for a holiday. The village is changing at the moment. It is bigger. There are new shops and houses. And there are cars and buses everywhere. We didn't have a car when I was young. We had a horse and cart.

Text B. Bob.

I was born in Findhorn, a fishing village in the north of Scotland. It was a small place then, with about a hundred houses.

I went to Aberdeen last summer and visited Findhorn. The village is different. It is bigger and nosier. There are new holiday homes and there are lots of tourists and new shops. I think it was nicer before.

When I was a boy, we lived in an old house. It was older than the other houses in the village. It was white and it had black windows and blue doors. I had a small room next to the kitchen. When you looked out of the window you saw a tall tree.

There were seven people in our family: my parents, me, and my brothers and sisters. We had a big dog, a cat and four budgies in a cage.

My father was a dentist and worked in Forres, a big town ten kilometres from Findhorn. My mother worked in Forres, too. She was a teacher but she didn't teach me. I went to a village school very near my home.
